Quad Cities Interfaith (QCI), being an affiliate of the Gamaliel Foundation, is one of the longest-running grantees of the Catholic Campaign for Human Development (CCHD). QCI has received $500,000 in grants from the CCHD since 2004 (the furthest back the online records go), including its most recent grant of \$65,000 in 2020.

Quad Cities Interfaith is intimately linked to and directly tied to Quad Cities PRIDE, an organization that promotes homosexual and transgender ideologies through debauched LGBTQ Pride events.

In 2018, Quad Cities Interfaith was identified as a "friend" level sponsor of the 2018 QC Pride event.

This isn't the only place where QCI was identified as a "sponsor." On May 22, 2018, QC Pride identified QCI on facebook as a sponsor as well.

Being a "Friend" level sponsor of QC Pride costs $100, which means that QCI is a direct financial contributor to the promotion of this public display of grave immorality. As a benefit of being a "Friend" level sponsor, the sponsoring organization gets mentioned on social media, which is what we see in the image above, confirming that the financial exchange did, indeed, take place.

In addition to being a financial sponsor for QC Pride in 2018, Rich Hendricks, who serves in two capacities on the Quad Cities Interfaith Board of Directors, is a co-founder and member of the Board of Directors for Quad Cities Pride.

Rev. Rich (B.A. Drake University; JD University of Virginia School of Law; M.Div. Emory University) has worked for equality as pastor of Metropolitan Community Church of the Quad Cities in Davenport, Iowa for the past thirteen years. He wears unmatched shoes to spark conversations around being different.

Rich is the co-founder of QC Pride, Inc., and of One Human Family QCA. Rich seeks a more just society also through his work with Quad Cities Interfaith. He is a trained Climate Reality Leadership Project speaker, and is the Co-Chair of Creation Care for the Universal Fellowship of Metropolitan Community Churches.

But the connections aren't limited to Rich Hendricks. Quad Cities Interfaith's executive director, Amber Bordolo, was the point of contact for anyone who wished to volunteer for the QC Pridefest of 2019. QCI's tax form 990 for the year 2019 identifies Bordolo as the executive director and Hendricks as a board member. And this call for volunteers for QC Pride Fest for that same year identifies Bordolo as the point of contact.

Another of Quad Cities Interfaith board members is Joe Heinrichs, who is a donor to QC Pride.

The image is a screenshot of a Facebook fundraiser post. At the top, a profile picture of Joe Heinrichs is shown next to the text "Joe Heinrichs donated to Rich D Hendricks's birthday fundraiser for Qc Pride Inc." and "March 10 · Facebook fundraisers ·". Below this is a large graphic featuring a rainbow bridge with the text "QUAD CITIES" arched over it and "Pride in Memory" in a large, black, cursive font below. Underneath the graphic is the fundraiser details: "Rich's birthday fundraiser for QC Pride in Memory" and "Fundraiser for Qc Pride Inc by Rich D Hendricks". A progress bar shows "$686 raised of $2,000" and "25 people donated." The word "Ended" is visible on the right side of the progress bar. Two red arrows point to the profile picture of Joe Heinrichs and the fundraiser title.

The activities of QC Pride are beyond disgusting, both morally and physically. And yet, two of QCI's three board members and its executive director are all intimately involved in the activities and promotion of QC Pride, and are responsible for QCI's direct financial contribution and participation in QC Pride as well.

On May 22, 2018, QC Pride posted its week-long schedule of events, which included a "Pin-Up Contest," a "Fast and Fabulous Drag Race," a "Freak Show," a "Family Day," and the "Pride Parade."

Conclusion

Quad Cities Interfaith has two out of three board members and an executive director who are directly involved in the QC Pride events. In 2018, Quad Cities Interfaith financially sponsored QC Pride week. This constitutes an organizational involvement in the promotion of homosexual and transgender ideologies as coordinated by the vast majority of its leadership.
